Helping his clients achieve extraordinary results is what Richard is passionate about. Possessing a diverse range of professional and personal skills and experience, Richard offers an approach that is fresh, engaging and insightful and leads to consistently successful outcomes. He has worked in executive roles in banking, I.T., and consulting on six continents and this versatility enables him to manage a wide range of clients. Richard readily incorporates practical and relevant examples during his consulting sessions and training workshops and engages and challenges his participants in a fun and energetic environment.

Richard has a rich history with FranklinCovey having spent five years working in business development prior to making an internal move into consulting. A dual USA/Australian citizen, his consulting and managerial experience extends beyond FranklinCovey over an 18-year span. As a result of this diverse range of experience, Richard has a deep understanding of client needs and all levels of the value chain.

As a Consultant, Richard helps his clients achieve results through the full range of FranklinCovey programs including but not limited to The 4 Disciplines of Execution; The 5 Choices to Extraordinary Productivity®; Leading at the Speed of Trust®; Project Management Essentials®; Helping Clients Succeed; The 6 Critical Practices for Leading a Team™; and The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People®.

In addition to his Consulting role, Richard further challenges and develops himself by working in the real estate industry and is an active property investor. Richard earned his Bachelor of Business from Cornell University (New York, USA) and his Masters in Business Administration (MBA) from University of Queensland. He balances his active work life by playing soccer competitively and attempting new recipes whenever possible.
